

Registration

The symposium addresses all colleagues and students, who professionally deal with the topics special education and/or inclusion in and through sports. It addresses especially to colleagues and students in special education and sports science as well as to teachers in regular, mainstream and special education schools.

The lectures will be projected both in English and German.

The building is accessible for wheelchairs! If you need assistance of any kind, please let us know in your registration.

Due to the generous support of the "Thomas Lurz and Dieter Schneider Sports Foundation" participation is free of charge.

Introduction

APA is an academic field of study and a service delivery profession which evaluates, supports and enhances the acceptance of individual differences in the context of physical activity, movement, games and sports.

APA advocates participation and access to active lifestyles and sport for all people. Since its institutional beginnings in 1973 (e.g. International Federation of Adapted Physical Activity (IFAPA), European Federation of Adapted Physical activity (EUFAPA)), APA has developed and evaluated perspectives for research, teaching and service delivery directed towards inclusive physical activity and education.

The symposium intends to give an overview of the academic field and service delivery of APA by expert lectures and a round table discussion and relates it to national and local efforts and applications directed towards inclusion in and through sports.
